

Master of Organizational Leadership

Northwestern Master of Organizational Leadership (MOL) students develop the knowledge and skills needed to provide effective leadership in public and private organizations. The MOL program combines theory, technology and practical application that can be used to immediately impact your work and those you lead and serve.

Program Highlights

- Coursework can be completed in under two years
- Flexible learning formats including online or blended
- Biblically based teaching that provides a unique perspective at the intersection of faith and leadership
- Development of a leadership philosophy built on biblical ethics and a Christian worldview
- Access to a lifelong professional network
- Graduate Certificate in Leadership credits are fully transferable toward the completion of UNW's MOL degree should you wish to earn a certificate before pursuing a full master's degree

Career Opportunities

With an MOL or MBA degree, you will be prepared for roles in a variety of settings, such as:

- Churches
- Community organizations
- Government offices
- Hospitals
- Ministries
- Nonprofits
- Recruitment agencies

Note: Roles in some settings may require additional education or training.
